

Our Commitment to Baltimore

Since The Johns Hopkins Hospital opened its doors in 1889, we have dedicated ourselves to helping the community. Baltimore is a place where many of our employees live, work and call home. Here are just a few of the many ways Johns Hopkins and its employees are committed to the community.

28 schools
in East Baltimore
are supported by Johns Hopkins
community
outreach programs.

1,125 employees reported volunteering at nearly 500 community
programs and organizations, totaling more than 2,100 hours in 2014 and 2015.

Since 2011, The Johns Hopkins University's Social Innovation Lab has funded 46 programs that develop innovative solutions to address pressing social issues in Baltimore.

The Johns Hopkins Hospital and The Johns Hopkins University were collectively named the #1 private employer in Baltimore that offered jobs to youth in summer 2015. The Johns Hopkins Summer Jobs Program provided jobs for 518 students in 2014 and 2015.
