Faculty Development in Geriatrics Education: A Mini-Fellowship

September 13-16, 2009

Johns Hopkins Care Center
5505 Hopkins Bayview Circle
Baltimore, MD 21224

GENERAL INFORMATION

Audience

This program has been developed to enhance the ability of medical and surgical faculty to teach geriatric medicine principles within their disciplines to medical students and residents.

Learning Objectives

At the end of the mini-fellowship, participants will have:

- Enhanced appreciation of geriatric principles relative to the care of older patients within their area of expertise
- Expanded knowledge of teaching skills essential to teaching about geriatrics within their practice settings
- Discovered opportunities to teach geriatrics within their current educational venues
- Established a support network to facilitate development and implementation of new curricula in their own institutions

Schedule

DAY 1

Sunday, September 13, 2009

Arrival and check-in. There will be a meet-and-greet social. Dinner is available onsite.

DAYS 2-4

Monday, September 14 -Wednesday, September 16, 2009

On-site didactic, small group, and case based learning focused on remediation of geriatric principles (e.g., Assessing Cognition, Nutrition, Poly pharmacy, End of life care) and teaching skills (e.g., Review of principles of adult learning, one minute precepting, geriatrics teaching pearls). Some small group sessions will focus on teaching geriatrics within particular disciplines (e.g., surgery and anesthesia, emergency medicine, outpatient internal medicine, or hospitalist) while other sessions will be interdisciplinary.

A dinner event will be scheduled for the evening of Tuesday, September 15.

After return to their home institutions, participants will continue to receive on-going mentorship from the Mini-fellowship faculty for one year.

Tuition

Tuition for this program is generously provided by the Donald W. Reynolds Foundation for faculty members with significant teaching responsibilities.
