

Lay Health Educator Program

A program of Johns Hopkins Bayview's Healthy Community Partnership

September 8 – November 17

*Classes meet every Thursday
(No class on October 6 or November 10)*

5:30 to 7 p.m.

Virtually via Zoom

The Lay Health Educator Program (LHEP) is a free, 9-week, 13.5-hour course for volunteers from religious communities who are interested in addressing many of today's greatest health challenges. Participants receive instruction, resources and ongoing support to develop proactive and compassionate programs for their congregations and communities.

Some of the topics discussed include:

- Diabetes
- Medication Management
- Depression
- Dementia
- Hypertension

To apply for LHEP, visit bit.ly/LHE_2022.

Applications are due by September 1. Space is limited.

For more information, call 410-550-1118
or email kmonson1@jhmi.edu.

