Provider Education Sessions: JHHC-ProgenyHealth Partnership (Conducted virtually via Zoom)

Johns Hopkins HealthCare invites you to attend an information session on our new partnership with ProgenyHealth LLC, a company specializing in neonatal care coordination services.

Background: Starting May 1, 2022, ProgenyHealth will be providing utilization management of new NICU cases, as well as for NICU babies readmitted within one year, for Johns Hopkins Employer Health Programs (EHP) and Priority Partners members. ProgenyHealth's neonatologists, pediatricians and neonatal nurse care managers will provide NICU admission services and assist with the discharge planning process to ensure a smooth transition to the home. Progeny will also provide care management for one year post discharge from the NICU. These professionals will work closely with EHP and Priority Partners members, clinical teams, attending physicians and nurses to promote healthy outcomes for premature and medically complex newborns.

Education Session Please register for one of the following 1-hour sessions, which will provide an overview of ProgenyHealth, its collaborative and proactive approach, and its best practices in the NICU setting. There will be a question and answer period at the end of the presentations.

Thursday, April 14, 2022 4-5 p.m.
