Re: Student Loan Deferment Processing

August 2022

The School of Medicine participates in the National Student Clearinghouse, an industry-sponsored consortium created to simplify the enrollment verification and deferment processes for schools. The Clearinghouse is responsible for providing enrollment status and deferment information, on behalf of the school, to guaranty agencies, lenders, servicers, and the Department of Education's National Student Loan Data System (NSLDS).

The School submits regular reports of students' enrollment status to the Clearinghouse, which will supply electronic verification of enrollment to lending agencies. Continue sending deferment forms to the Registrar's Office, where they will be forwarded to the Clearinghouse for processing.

If you receive a collection letter from your loan servicer, we recommend taking the following steps to inquire about the status of your deferment:

1. Call the lending agency to see if a deferment form was received between the time the Clearinghouse supplied the information and the lending agency sent the collection letter.
2. If, after calling the servicer, it still appears that the deferment has not been processed, you may call the Clearinghouse at (703) 742-7791 and ask for a Student Service Representative. The representative will verify the date on which the Clearinghouse received the deferment form, the date the deferment was certified and mailed, the enrollment status that was certified, and where the form was sent.
3. If an emergency exists, for example, you are 150 days delinquent and being threatened with default, the Clearinghouse will intervene on your behalf by sending another enrollment certification to the servicer. Further, it will work with the servicer to ensure that the form is processed on a high-priority basis.

If you have any questions concerning the School's participation with the Clearinghouse, please contact SEAM.
